A Woman's Grit and Grip.

Last night a lady who resides on Ivy street was "at home" to quite a number of her friends, and a pleasant evening was the result. Before the hour for separation had arrived, however, one of the guests of the lady was taken quite ill and was escorted to a bed-room, where she was disrobed and made to feel as easy as every possible kindness could offer. About 12 o'clock she fell into a quiet sleep, and the young lady who was watching by her side, thinking that her guest had forgotten her ills in sweet slumber, lay down upon a sofa, beside a window in the room, and was soon lost to the cares of this world. How long she slept she does not know, but while in the midst of a pleasant dream she felt something brush across her face and with a start awoke. Her awakening saved the life of her friend, but came near being her own death. The something which brushed across her face and awoke her was the nightdress of that friend, who had, in a somnambulist fit, arisen from her bed and walked across the room to the window, beside which the lady was sleeping. To get to the window she crawled over the sleeping form of the host and then began an exit, which must have resulted in death but for the work of her gown. Hardly realizing what she was doing, the lady grabbed the white fabric which had aroused her, with both hands, and as she did so her ears were greeted with screams just outside the window. In an instant she realized that she was holding her friend in mid-air and that to loosen her grasp on the cloth was to insure her death. She was not physically strong, but with a nerve rarely equaled she tightened her hold and then joined in with her friend's call for aid. Soon their combined screams awoke the inmates of the house, who hastened to the room and rescued the young lady from her aerial position. As soon as the somnambulist, for such she acknowledged herself to be, was drawn into the room, the young lady who saved her life fainted, and this morning her nervous prostration is so great that her friends are in great anxiety for her. —[Atlanta Constitution.]
